Labor and Employment

Julián García is a partner in the Garrigues Labor and Employment Department, where he specializes in labor and employment and social security law, providing advice on employment relationships, human resources and social security.

He also has extensive experience in litigation before the labor and social security courts and in advising on corporate restructurings, collective bargaining, employment contracts and senior management contracts, among other matters.

He holds a Law Degree from Universidad de Valencia and a Master's Degree in Labor Law Advice and Business Law from Centro de Estudios Garrigues, in collaboration with Harvard Law School. He has teaching experience as a lecturer on labor and employment law at several universities and has been a speaker in myriad forums as well as an author of numerous publications.

He is a member of the Valencia Bar Association.

Experience

Julián García joined Garrigues in 2008 and has been a partner since 2024.

He advises on strategic and particularly complex matters relating to labor and employment law, human resources, social security and occupational risk prevention, providing comprehensive advice to companies with a superb labor law technique and with a high degree of involvement in achieving satisfactory results for the client.

Of note is his advice on such matters as restructurings, collective layoffs and temporary layoff procedures (ERTEs), collective bargaining, corporate policies, occupational risk prevention, remuneration and compensation, as well as in litigation on all facets of employment relationships (disciplinary dismissals and objective dismissals, material modifications to working conditions, fundamental rights, etc.). He also has broad experience in the areas of social security, penalty proceedings commenced by the labor authorities and occupational accidents.

He advises clients in both Spanish and English.
